

Why Industries Are Using Drones 2021

As soon as smartphone applications were established, only imagination confined their use and scalability. In less than two decades, desktop computers shrunk to the size of handheld devices. Using a phone for anything other than talking or texting was unimaginable. Today, drones are to business what the smartphone was to the general public decades ago. The applications for drones in work-flows are attracting the attention of companies across industries for their time-saving features, accurate data collection, and safety of workers. As the demand for drone-captured data increases, so does the need for drone operators. Aerial5 Visual Solutions is a licensed and insured small business, FAA-certified, and follows a strict safety management protocol. We collaborate with our clients to establish value-added drone applications to their workflows. Our business is your business!